

REPUBLICANS ARE CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

entirely revised the taxation laws so as to make them just and equitable. So that each man would pay his share and no more. That's what we all want—a square deal. It promised that they would make liberal appropriations for the people at the settlement on Molokai. It is unfortunate that they have to be there. But for the public good it seems necessary, and so the public ought to make it as pleasant as possible for them. The Republican party has promised that if its men are elected this shall be done.

LIBERALITY TOWARDS LILUOKALANI.

The Republican party promised that if its candidates are elected it will make a liberal provision for Liluokalani. We may have differed in the past about the Monarchy and the Republic, but we are all Americans now, and the Republican party recognizes in Liluokalani a Hawaiian lady who was one of your Allies, and was once at the head of the Government, and that respect and consideration is due her.

Now I am a Republican, and if I am elected I will do my part to keep these promises. Those of you who know me will believe that I will. And those of you who do not know me, know that the Republican party always keeps its promises. Whenever the Republican party has been in power there have always been good times. Men are always able to get work to do and good pay for doing it. It is because of the Republican party and the fact that it keeps its promises that there are good times in the United States now. And we here in Hawaii want to keep in touch with that great party and share in the prosperity it always brings.

REPUBLICANISM MEANS GOOD TIMES.

So in voting for the Republican ticket you can always know that you are voting for a party that always brings good times and that always keeps its promises. That is its record everywhere. As a Republican, I and the other candidates of the party will do our best to keep up that record. Some of the other candidates are here this evening, and all of them will appear before you before election, and will tell you as I do that we will keep the promises of the Republican party.

Now on the other hand, there are the Independents. There are some well-meaning men among them, I am sure. I wouldn't say a hard word against any man where it is necessary. But the trouble with the Independent party is that it has no record and you don't know whether the good men in the party will be able to make their candidates keep the party's promises or not. The Republican party always keeps its promises. When you vote for the Republican party you know that you will get just what it promises you. If you vote for the Independent party you don't know whether you will or not.

DEMOCRATS DISCUSSED.

There are well-meaning men in the Democratic party, too. But the trouble with the Democratic party is that the people who know it best trust it least. The people of the United States for the last forty years have trusted it only twice, and each time they put back the Republican party in power just as quick as they could. So I think I do not need to spend much time in urging you not to vote the Democratic ticket.

Then the thing is right here in a nutshell: You know just what the Republican party promises, and that it will keep its promises, and the people of the United States who know it best trust it and believe in it and elect it to power time after time. You don't know exactly what the Independent party promises you, for its platform says it will do everything that is right, and it will tell you just what things it will do, so you can't tell whether the things it will do will be the right things or not. And then you don't know whether it will be able to keep its promises after it has made them. As for the Democrats, if you know them, you know them best; but you don't trust them, and don't much encourage them for you to try them.

VOTE A STRAIGHT TICKET.

It seems to me that it is clear the Republican ticket is the one that is to your interest, and the interest of all of us, to vote, and if that is so, you ought to vote it straight from top to bottom, for every one of its candidates, so as to make it sure that you will get what you are voting for, and make it easier for your members of the Legislature to give you the things you want and are voting for. Vote for all of them. Don't scratch your ticket and vote for some Republicans and some Democrats and some Independents. Because if you do you won't know what kind of a Legislature you are going to get, or whether it will make the best laws for the Islands or not.

Now every reason I have urged for voting for the Republican ticket for the Legislature applies just as strongly in choosing the man you want to represent you in Congress. The Republicans have nominated Sam Parker. You know him. He is one of you; he is one of us. For everybody in Hawaii knows Sam Parker, and knows that he is a square man, and feels that we will be well represented in Washington by him. He knows the President. He knows a great many Senators and Congressmen. He is well liked in Washington and can get a great deal more from Congress for the Islands than any of the other candidates.

REPUBLICANS WILL KEEP PROMISES.

In conclusion, let me say: The Republican party tells you exactly what it will do if its men are elected, and you know it will keep its promises. You don't know what any other party will do. The Republican party will do its part if you will do yours by voting for every one of its candidates.

The other speakers of the evening were A. G. M. Robertson, Jonah Kumalea and Clarence Crabbe.

McCabe Withdraws.

Louis J. McCabe, Republican candidate for the Legislature from the Fifth District, has requested Chairman Geo. R. Carter to remove his name from the list of candidates. He has resigned on account of the serious illness of his wife, and desires to be in constant attendance upon her.

The central committee and the members of the Fifth District, as well, regret that Mr. McCabe is forced to take this step. He will, however, do what he can for the party in his district, and endeavor to increase the following of the Republican party. His letter of resignation reads as follows:

Heala, H. T., Oct. 8, 1900.
George R. Carter, Chairman District Committee, Honolulu:

Dear Sir—Circumstances prevent me now from accepting the candidacy as one of the Representatives of the Fifth District. My wife has been in a very critical condition, and it is a case that requires my constant attendance. I thank you and the members of the committee for the great honor that you have conferred on me, and I will do all that I can for the encouragement and support of the Republican ticket here in my district at the coming election day. Yours with great respect,
LOUIS JOHN MCCABE.

DEMOCRATS TO INDEPENDENTS—Don't mind the Republican bulldogs; come down and join us!

George R. Carter has called a special meeting of the Fifth District committee to be held on Monday evening next for the purpose of electing a substitute in place of Mr. McCabe.

Young Men's Club.

The Young Men's Republican Club held a rousing meeting last night at its De Bolt and P. L. Weaver delivered short speeches, which were enthusiastically received. Lorrin Andrews explained the proper way of balloting, and at the close of the addresses a number of informal talks took place. A quartet which was present diversified the proceedings with excellent music, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Mr. De Bolt said that everyone should ask themselves why they were Republicans, and be sure they understood the reasons. He said in part: "A voter must look into and examine thoroughly the principles of his party. If he does not do this he is remiss in his duty. I would rather be a Democrat in a community of intelligent Democrats than a Republican among Republicans who know not why they are Republicans."

JEFFERSONIAN PRINCIPLES.

"Thomas Jefferson founded the Republican party. The principles of that party are founded upon the principles contained in the Declaration of Independence. Jefferson's party was first called the Democratic party; in 1854 it was called the Republican party. Its first principle was anti-slavery. For many years prior to this the majority of people in the Southern States had been slaves. The Republican party opposed slavery. In 1860 J. C. Fremont was nominated as first Republican candidate for President. He was defeated, but in 1860 Lincoln carried the principle to a successful issue. As a result the Southern States seceded, and civil war was the result, with slavery the bone of contention. That was Lincoln's war."

"Freedom, progress, humanity and prosperity are the watchwords of the Republican party. They believe in America for Americans. They insist on a protective tariff. The Democratic party is not the party of progress; they oppose where the Republicans propose."

REPUBLICAN PROSPERITY.

"When Cleveland was elected the country was forced to issue bonds, factories were closed, men were thrown out of work and wages depreciated. When Harrison was elected prosperity returned. It was not the man, but the people's confidence in his party that effected this. When Cleveland was again made President history repeated itself. Then came William McKinley and his four years of office have placed the country in a more prosperous condition than ever before. He is a statesman, able, broad-minded and practical, and one who has a happy faculty of discerning what is best for the people and the nation. In his letter of acceptance he said that he favored a short day rather than a short dollar."

VOTE FOR PARKER.

"Have we had too much prosperity? If not, let us vote for Republican principles as represented by Samuel Parker. We are Americans now, and it behooves us to maintain American principles." "It has for years past been an axiom that as the State of Maine goes, so will go the country. An election recently held went overwhelmingly Republican. If that is a criterion both houses of Congress will be Republican by a large majority."

"We are seeking Statehood and Parker, if sent to Congress, can do more than any other man toward that end. No other man can accomplish so much for Hawaii, and for this reason he should be supported from a business let alone a patriotic standpoint. We shall soon have Statehood if we show McKinley that we are true to the principles of the Republican party. A man in accord with the principles of the Republican party can do more in Congress than an able man, who is not in accord with them."

WEAVER EXPLAINS.

Mr. Weaver explained that gold was on a sound basis, whereas silver had been for years and was constantly depreciating in value, which would mean an equivalent loss to the working man. If the policy of Bryan were accepted by the country. He said that the Republican party allowed a man to vote independent of the color of his skin. Education and intelligence were all that was necessary. The reciprocity treaty of 1876, brought about by the Republican party, had enriched Hawaii $6,000,000 a year by letting down the bars to Hawaiian sugar. The Democratic party, representing the Louisiana planters, wanted to keep out Hawaiian sugar, and bitterly opposed this. The native got five times more for his land since the reciprocity treaty, he concluded, for the Republican party had made sugar cultivation a paying proposition.

The club room will be open every evening from now on till the election.

Chills

Ever become chilled through and through?

The acute sensation of cold is followed by feverishness and aches in all parts of the body. Finally the whole troubles itself in the throat and lungs in the shape of a cough.

There is nothing so bad for a cough as coughing.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

will cure these chills and coughs. A few doses are sufficient at first. More time is required later on.

Stop coughing and you will get well. Keep coughing and you invite bronchitis, pneumonia, or even consumption itself. Better stop your cough at once and thus end the whole matter.

PLATFORM IS ADOPTED BY CONVENTION

tion, who control the destinies of the Nation."

Prince David's portrait in oils, a fine reproduction by Cogswell, rested upon an easel on the stage near the chairman's table, and during the nominating speech it was pointed to with pride. When John Bush read the platform in Hawaiian he dramatically swept his free hand toward the portrait and made the most of his part in the exercises.

The delegates to the convention occupied the front seats near the orchestra. A band was stationed in the gallery and enlivened the convention with the strains of real old time Democratic selections. "Dixie" was played when the platform was adopted.

Among those present were: J. A. Cummins, John Colburn, Fred H. Hayseiden, S. C. Dwight, J. K. Mossman, J. M. Camara, J. A. Gonsalves, Edward Styles, E. J. Sullivan, T. G. Camarinos, E. B. McCarthy, and before waiting for other nominations, moved that the nominations close, which was carried. Col. McCarthy was elected without opposition, and Edmund H. Hart was elected to fill the secretary's chair.

W. H. Cornwell moved that a committee of three on credentials be appointed by the chair which prevailed. Chairman McCarthy appointed W. H. Cornwell, Julius Aesch and F. S. Peachy. A recess was taken for five minutes to allow the committee to make up its report.

The following list of names was presented to the chairman by the committee of delegates duly qualified to sit in the convention:

TESTA'S COAT OFF.

Chairman Cornwell of the committee moved the report be adopted, which was done. J. M. Sims moved that the temporary officers be made the permanent officers of the organization. This was carried with a rush, although a rank outsider at the car of the hall cried "No!"

F. J. Testa, coat in hand, although qualified to sit as a delegate, preferred to remain in the gallery and watch the proceedings. He did not wear the red badge designating the delegates.

The chairman announced that the next order of business was the nomination of a Delegate to Congress. All eyes turned to S. K. Kaloa, one of the delegates, who immediately arose and made his way to the stage. Bowing to the chairman and to the audience, he addressed the convention in English by John Bush. At one stage of the speech Mr. Bush became so lost in the flow of oratory of the nominator that he could not interpret and the speaker's words were lost to the convention.

KALOAS SPEECH.

Mr. Kaloa said: "I have the pleasure to propose to you the name of the beloved of the people, Prince David Kawanakoa, as Delegate to the United States of America, in behalf of the Democrats of the Territory of Hawaii. The faces of the delegates show that in this they are with me. The stars which enlighten the world, and the emblem upon our flag, seem to flash a light when I say the name of Prince David Kawanakoa."

"With great hopes I make this nomination tonight, that every Democrat and every lover of freedom and of respect for the government that has made us one of that great Republic of America—I say let us carry the nomination successfully to the issue that will take him on to Washington as the Delegate to Congress from Hawaii."

"Let us glance back for an inspiration to the father of our great country—George Washington. It seems to me that the spirit of this great man permeates the people here tonight and that he looks down in spirit upon us to show that he is in favor of our nominee."

"I am a man that you may see has not been behind in struggling for our party. He has not spared himself one moment of rest. He has not spared anything he possesses, and is endeavoring to bring success for his people. He will try to do as much for the people as lies in his power, and do as much as he has already done in seeking to franchise his people throughout the country. We see the picture of our Delegate here (pointing to the oil painting). Here we have the Prince with us tonight, if not in person, we know his spirit is with us. We see the character that blooms out in the countenance of our nominee. He labors in the country for the good of all against those who would oppress us and down the people."

The next paragraph was lost to the audience. Bush became so interested that he forgot the import of the speaker's words and was unable to tell what they were.

"We are here as Democrats, as citizens of America and of an enlightened government and of a great and free country. We will prove to the people of this world that we are working on a system, as Democrats, to carry out our ideas for freedom and liberty and for the welfare of the community."

WILL HELP UNCLE SAM.

"I tell you, gentlemen, that if you will carry out your duty as citizens of the great Republic we will be able to enhance the standing of our country, which is small as we are, and will do much in bringing up the standard of our government to that of the political world that will make us glorious in assisting to do so, and will be glorified for doing it."

"I want to tell you tonight that we cannot crown ourselves with glory unless we go to work and work harmoniously to uphold our candidate. I have proposed to you tonight the only candidate that will carry our banner to victory. He is eligible to stand in any society here or abroad without fear or blush, which the Republican candidate cannot do."

"I want especially to call to the attention of the Hawaiians how gracious have been our fellow-citizens of the mother country in coming with us to secure the nomination of Prince David, who is a King according to the Constitution, and he is even now a King. I want you to do him honor, to extend the hand of friendship to him and to vote for him unanimously in order that we can receive from the United States by having him as our representative there. I want to call the attention also not only of Hawaiians but of all American citizens to the fact that I have nominated a man with a great genealogy, and a man who stands before us as one that is not far removed from the Kamemehamehas. He comes of royal lineage and is a born Prince. We have nominated him together. They let us strike our hands together and bring our candidate to the front. The Roman said, 'United is strength.'"

"He will carry his honors well among the men representing the power, wealth and strength of the United States. Let us follow the actions of the birds that fly in the air. When one makes a leap let all the others follow. Let us give three cheers for Bryan. Aote."

W. H. Cornwell seconded the nomination. "We all do," said a delegate. Cornwell moved the nominations close, and Prince David was declared by the chairman to be the choice of the Democratic party of Hawaii.

THE PLATFORM.

The chair announced the next order of business was the party platform. E. S. Peachy moved a committee of three on the platform be appointed, which was done. The chair appointed the following to serve: E. B. McClanahan, H. J. Mossman, John Effinger, C. L. Rhodes, Fred. Hayseiden, W. J. Sheldon, W. C. Wilder, C. Palmer Woods, J. M. Sims, W. H. Cornwell.

A recess was taken for a quarter of an hour while the committee deliberated, and then it filed into the auditorium. E. B. McClanahan bearing in his hand the typewritten platform, which had been prepared beforehand, and of which a Hawaiian copy was also in readiness. Mr. McClanahan took a stand at the front of the stage near the footlights and read the platform to the end. The paragraphs were applauded.

John E. Bush read the Hawaiian version. Upon motion of a delegate the entire platform was adopted as a whole. The delegates waved their hats, shouted themselves hoarse and the band played "Dixie" for all there was in their horns and the big brass drum.

TERRITORIAL CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

The chairman announced the next order of business was the election of a Territorial Central Committee. He suggested that the members of the different districts put their heads together and report the names of the men they desired to have placed upon the committee.

After half an hour's recess C. L. Rhodes, chairman, read the report of the committee. The members of the different districts put their heads together and reported the names of the men they desired to have placed upon the committee.
